

Dear colleagues,

It is an honor to serve as the Editor-in-Chief of the Turkish Journal of Nephrology. It is going to be our mission to build upon and broaden the past years' successes by focusing on both the journal's quality and its international presence in the fields of chronic kidney disease, kidney replacement therapies, including dialysis and transplantation. The main target of the editorial team is to make the journal more accessible for everyone therefore we are keen to keep our former success on the ratio of international publications and plan to work in collaboration with reviewers and authors from all around the world. As we advance, we want to be more user-friendly and more responsive, and aim to be a journal that is a channel for scientific communication in the field.

With the help of our new editorial board, our reviewers, and colleagues, I believe the journal's continuing development and success will only rise from now on. I would like to thank the previous Editor-in-Chief, Bülent Tokgöz, and the editorial board for their enormous efforts. We intend to progress in the same positive direction.

253

We welcome your submissions as well as any ideas and comments you may have regarding the Turkish Journal of Nephrology.

Kind regards,
Rümeysa Kazancıoğlu
Editor-in-Chief

Rümeysa Kazancıoğlu

Division of Nephrology, Bezmialem Vakif University School of Medicine, İstanbul, Turkey